

Outsource Accounting Services for Non-Profits

When does outsourcing make sense?

There are a number of reasons organizations consider outsourcing all or part of their accounting functions. They require special expertise that may not be a core competency of those who end up performing the tasks. Accounting can therefore be difficult to manage or may require more time and attention than management has available to give. There may also be special projects that require more expertise than can be found internally. Some of the common challenges which lead organizations to choose an outsourcing solution include:

My professional introduction to Insero came when the Chamber CFO left for another career opportunity. Knowing I had to quickly find a solution to maintain our internal controls, compliance, and daily organizational function, I reached out to Insero and within two weeks, we were provided with the necessary expertise to focus on the daily operations of the Chamber as well as the critical expertise for the higher-level budgeting and forecasting. This expertise allowed the Chamber to continue to meet the Finance Committee and Board of Directors financial reporting requirements. That was four years ago and because of the relationship that the Chamber has built with Insero, we made the due diligent decision to maintain this partnership and remain grateful to a company that fosters trust, integrity, professionalism and responsiveness. I highly encourage others to consider utilizing the Insero expertise. It not only can make a difference, it does make a difference!

What Does It Mean to Have a Higher Standard?

We believe the greatest successes are not born from a single event. They are the result of hard work, planning, tenacity, passion, and focus. They grow without compromising—heralding honor, respect, and admiration through the business world and throughout the community.

They set a higher standard for all.

It is this standard that we bring to every client and every aspect of their business. Through our partnership and leadership we aim to help these clients continue to achieve great successes that can be measured in more than just dollars.
